

Lucy Watson (Nee Hyde) - TTS Student: 1998 - 2005

Current role: Senior Teaching Associate - Anatomy Lecturer, University of Bristol

Career pathway:

After Thomas Telford School I went on to gain a BSc in Human Anatomy and Cell Biology at the University of Liverpool and then completed an MSc in Medical Art and Illustration at Dundee University. After completing that in 2009 I worked at the University of Aberdeen in the School of Medicine and Dentistry as a Lecturer in Human Anatomy for 7 years, as well as studying for my PhD. In summer 2016 I moved to the University of Bristol to the Centre for Comparative Anatomy to take up a similar role.

Advice for students:

Work hard, but most importantly ALWAYS be curious!

Plans for the future:

Continue in Anatomical and Medical Education and Academia, educate the great Doctors and Biomedical Scientists of the future!

Best memory of your time at Thomas Telford?

The inspirational staff I had the pleasure of being taught by, the wonderful friendships and of course, the one way system, the dreaded name badges and the always breaking red folders!
